Saudi Arabia Expands E-Visa Access to Three Additional Countries

Saudi Arabia has extended its electronic visa (e-visa) program to include citizens from Barbados, the Bahamas, and Grenada.

According to the Saudi Press Agency, citizens from these countries can now apply for an e-visa online or upon arrival, expanding the total number of eligible countries to 66. The Saudi Ministry of Foreign Affairs, in cooperation with the Ministries of Interior and Tourism, announced that nationals from these countries can obtain a visitor visa either electronically or upon arrival at any of the Kingdom's international ports.

This initiative is part of Saudi Arabia's efforts to provide a memorable tourist experience for visitors from around the globe. It aligns with the Ministry of Tourism's strategy to enhance global connectivity, stimulate economic diversification, and achieve the tourism goals of Vision 2030. These goals include contributing over 10 percent to GDP from tourism and creating one million jobs.

Expanded Tourist Visa Eligibility

In addition to the new countries, the tourist visa eligibility has been extended to residents of the US, UK, EU, and holders of visit visas from these regions. Residents of GCC countries are also eligible, allowing for tourism, Umrah pilgrimage, family visits, and event attendance. Furthermore, transit visas for Saudia and flynas airlines permit a 96-hour stay.

The Ministry introduced the visit visa in September 2019 to highlight Saudi Arabia's tourism offerings and promote cultural experiences. The e-visa system is expected to expand to include more countries as the Kingdom's tourism sector continues to grow.

List of Eligible Countries:

Essential Travel Documents for a Hassle-Free Entry on a UAE Visit Visa

Planning to visit the UAE for a quick summer break? If you are traveling to the country on a tourist or visit visa, what documents do you need to carry, apart from your passport?

Gulf News spoke with travel and tourism experts in the UAE to clarify all the arrangements you need to have in place before you land.

- Secure Your Return Flight Ticket
Husham Kattingeri, an outbound travel supervisor at Regal Tours Worldwide, emphasized the importance of having a return ticket regardless of your destination.

"The first thing that is compulsory for anybody, not just in the UAE but anywhere in the world, is that you must show a return ticket, either to your home country or even if it is to another country, as long as you have a valid visa for that country. That means that a ticket out of UAE must be there, you cannot have a one-way ticket," Kattingeri said.

- Consider Carrying Cash
Kattingeri also recommended carrying a sufficient amount of cash to cover your expenses during the trip. "It is better to have some amount of money with you, which you will need anyway during your trip. It helps," he said.
- Hotel Booking Confirmation (Optional, but Beneficial)
Nizar Pulappadi, manager at Season Travel and Tourism, added that while you may not always be asked for details of your accommodation, it is crucial to know where you will be staying. "If a person is a visit visa holder, and they don't have any relatives or friends in the UAE, it is important to have a hotel booking. But if you do have a relative or friend, all you need to do is carry their passport copy and visa page, as supporting documents, in case you are asked about where you are going to stay. It is also important to communicate clearly, so if you are asked by an officer where you are going to stay, provide a clear address or the area in which your friend or relative stays," Pulappadi said.

UAE: Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid Announces Emiratisation Rate Surpassing 100,000

More than 100,000 Emiratis are now employed in the private sector, marking a historic milestone.

His Highness Sheikh Mohammed bin Rashid Al Maktoum, Vice President and Prime Minister of the UAE and Ruler of Dubai, revealed on Sunday that 70,000 of these placements occurred in the last two and a half years following the launch of the Nafis programme. Supported by a Dh24 billion fund, Nafis is a comprehensive initiative aimed at integrating Emiratis into the private workforce, complemented by several supportive legislations to stimulate job growth and economic expansion.

Further enhancing the integration between the government and private sectors, a new policy adopted by the Cabinet now favours government employment for those with at least three years of experience in the private sector. Looking ahead, Sheikh Mohammed has set ambitious targets, aiming to generate 100,000 new job opportunities for UAE nationals within the next three years.

On his X account, Sheikh Mohammed posted on Sunday: "Today, I reviewed the achievements of the Emiratisation strategy in the UAE's private sector. For the first time ever, over 100,000 Emiratis are employed in this sector, with 70,000 joining in the last two and a half years following the launch of a significant Dh24 billion Nafis programme by the UAE President. This programme, along with numerous legislative supports for Emiratisation, has spurred our economic growth."

"The Cabinet has also approved a new policy prioritising government employment for those with three years of private sector experience. I extend my deepest gratitude to the Nafis team and the Ministry of Emiratisation and Human Resources, under the watchful eye of my brother Sheikh Mansour bin Zayed, for their dedication to this crucial national project," Sheikh Mohammed said.

"Our private and government sectors operate in seamless integration, providing countless opportunities for both national and non-national workers. Our aim is to create an additional 100,000 jobs for Emiratis in the next three years. The future of our country, our youth, and our economy is set to be brighter, better, and greater."

Kuwait Imposes 7-Year Jail Terms for Certificate Fraud; Authorities Crack Down on Verification Lapses

Kuwait is intensifying its efforts to combat certificate fraud, imposing severe penalties on offenders.

According to a government source, the crackdown is a top priority, targeting employees who fail to adhere to certificate verification procedures. The campaign has identified three primary charges for those implicated in certificate falsification: misappropriation of public funds, forgery, and fraud for illicit gains and privileges. Violators face up to seven years in prison and are required to reimburse twice the amount of any unlawfully obtained salaries and bonuses.

This stringent action comes in response to the discovery that numerous employees, when requested to submit their certificates for auditing, opted for retirement instead. This development has raised suspicions, prompting further investigations.

Individuals withholding their certificates under various excuses now face imminent legal consequences, including potential salary suspensions. To bolster enforcement measures, Kuwaiti authorities are enhancing detection methods. This involves collaboration with cultural offices and foreign universities to authenticate certificates, particularly those issued abroad. Modern technology, such as barcode systems on certificates, facilitates easier authentication of newer documents.

Israeli Military Advances into Rafah Despite International Court Ruling

Israel's military continues its operations against Hamas in Rafah, southern Gaza, despite an International Court of Justice (ICJ) ruling to halt activities to protect civilians. Israeli officials interpret the ICJ ruling as allowing continued operations if conducted with care. The military is executing targeted strikes in Rafah, not a full invasion. The ICJ stated that "Israel must immediately halt its military offensive... which may inflict on the Palestinian group in Gaza conditions of life that could bring about its physical destruction." The ruling has led to differing interpretations. Some see it as an order to stop the offensive entirely, while Israeli officials argue it is conditional, prohibiting actions that could destroy civilians. Israel's National Security Adviser Tzachi Hanegbi emphasized that the campaign in Rafah will not "lead to the destruction of the Palestinian civilian population."

Legal scholars like Mordechai Kremnitzer agree that the ICJ did not ban all operations but required avoiding harm to civilians. The court did not demand Hamas release hostages or cease missile attacks, suggesting a balanced interpretation. Prime Minister Benjamin Netanyahu's war cabinet is set to discuss a truce and hostage release deal amid ongoing fighting and rocket attacks on Tel Aviv. The ICJ ruling and subsequent Israeli interpretation underscore the complexities of the Gaza conflict and international legal interventions.
